

Call it a “Schindler’s List” for North Korea.
- Wall Street Journal -

The difference is that the Steven Spielberg film debuted nearly 50 years after the Holocaust had ended. “Crossing,” which is released today in Ottawa, depicts a tragedy that is still going on --- a tragedy that despite its massive scale rarely captures the world’s attention. Anyone who sees “Crossing” will not soon forget the suffering of the North Korean people.”

Please join us for a very special evening when we present the film, Crossing, a “Schindler’s List for North Korea – Wall Street Journal.” We will be bringing in North Korean refugees who now live in Canada to talk about the plight they experienced during their escape. Reception to follow film and Q/A with dignitaries, including Senators, Members of Parliament and NGO leaders.

- Tuesday, September 14, 2010, 7:00PM
- National Archives/Library of Canada
395 Wellington, Ottawa
- Admission: $20

info@freethinkingfilms.com

www.freethinkingfilms.com

Co-hosted by

The Council for Human Rights in North Korea

Toronto, Canada
kbl928@yahoo.com